Helicopters can land on a small plot of flat ground. Airplanes and jets need airports that have long flat strips of land called runways in order to take off and land.